Guide to the Public Display of Flags on Government Buildings

Any guide and model document provided by the LOC is intended to be used as a starting point in an individual city's development of its own policies and documents. Each city is unique, and any adopted document or policy should be individually tailored to meet a city's unique needs.

This guide is not intended as a substitute for legal advice. Cities should consult with their city attorney to ensure that it complies with all flag-related aspects of federal, state and local law.

Introduction

The image of a flag flying over a government building is not uncommon. Typically, government entities – including cities – will fly the national and state flag on their buildings. The flying of some flags is even mandated by law. This guide will cover: how and when city flags should be flown; and when other non-governmental flags should be flown; and how to dispose of older flags.

The Display of Governmental Flags

The rules and regulations impacting the display of governmental flags varies between federal and state law.

Federal Flag Regulations

Federal law does not mandate the display of the United States flag. However, should a city choose to display the flag, it should follow the federal flag display guidelines. The United States flag should only be displayed from sunrise to sunset unless it is properly illuminated during the hours of darkness.¹ The flag should be displayed on or near the main building of public institutions and should be hoisted briskly and lowered ceremoniously and should not be displayed on days where the weather is inclement unless an all-weather flag is displayed.² When the United States flag is flown on the same halyard as another state or city flag, the United States flag shall be at the peak.³ For further details on the display of the United States flag, a copy of Guidelines for Display of the Flag issued by the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs is provided for easy reference at the end of this guide.

State Flag Regulations

Unlike the federal requirements, the state of Oregon requires two types of flags in addition to the American flag to be displayed. All public institutions must display the United States flag, the Oregon state flag, and the National League of Families POW/MIA flag.⁴ Both state and POW/MIA flags must be displayed during the same time when the United States flag is customarily displayed.⁵ In addition to the display of governmental flags, state statute provides that necessary funds to defray the expenses incurred for such flags and for poles and appliances necessary in connection therewith and for the care thereof shall be paid out of the funds available for the care and maintenance of the public building.⁶

City Flag Regulations

The rules and regulations around the display of city flags is unique to each individual city. To promote consistency, cities may choose to implement a city flag display policy via resolution passed by the city council. A sample city flag resolution is provided at the end of this guide.

Flag Etiquette

There are federal and state guidelines as to when certain flags must be flown at half-staff, which is done during periods of mourning. For example, flags are to be flown at half-staff on all federal buildings during Memorial Day or when the President orders flags to be flown at half-staff. Similarly, the Oregon governor has similar authority to order when flags should be flown at half-staff within the state. Cities may also order flags to be flown at half-staff. Once a flag is worn out or otherwise unfit for display, it should be destroyed in a dignified manner, preferably by burning.

The Display of Non-Governmental Flags

When a city or other government entity chooses to fly a flag on city property, this is considered government speech.⁷ Unlike the public's First Amendment right to freedom of speech, the government is not required to display any and everything that is requested by members of the public. Rather, the city may choose to fly the non-governmental flags and commemorative flags of its choosing. It is recommended that the city council develop a policy regarding the types of flags the city will fly whether by request of a member of the public, city staff, or the council itself. Cities have broad discretion on the extent of its non-governmental flag policy. A city may choose to ban the flying on non-governmental flag outright, allow certain flags upon request, or allow all flags. If a city chooses to fly certain flags upon request of the public, it is important that the city reviews the requests in a non-discriminatory manner. Examples of various flag policies from select cities are included at the end of this guide.

⁷ See, for example, Shurtleff v. City of Boston, 986 F3d 78 (1st Cir 2021) (holding the city's display of third-party flags on the city hall flagpole constitutes government speech and decision to deny Christian organization's application to display Christian flag on city flagpole did not implicate free speech rights).

Guidelines for Display of the Flag

Public Law 94-344, known as the Federal Flag Code, contains rules for handling and displaying the U.S. flag. While the federal code contains no penalties for misusing the flag, states have their own flag codes and may impose penalties. The language of the federal code makes clear that the flag is a living symbol.

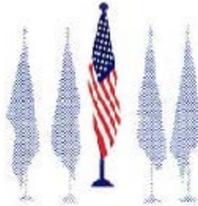

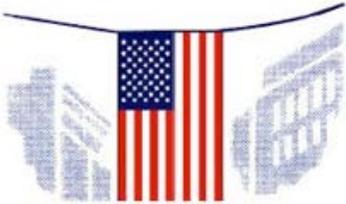

In response to a Supreme Court decision which held that a state law prohibiting flag burning was unconstitutional, Congress enacted the Flag Protection Act in 1989. It provides that anyone who knowingly desecrates the flag may be fined and/or imprisoned for up to one year. However, this law was challenged by the Supreme Court in a 1990 decision that the Flag Protection Act violates the First Amendment free speech protections.

Important Things to Remember

Traditional guidelines call for displaying the flag in public only from sunrise to sunset. However, the flag may be displayed at all times if it's illuminated during darkness. The flag should not be subject to weather damage, so it should not be displayed during rain, snow and wind storms unless it is an all-weather flag.

It should be displayed often, but especially on national and state holidays and special occasions.

The flag should be displayed on or near the main building of public institutions, schools during school days, and polling places on election days. It should be hoisted briskly and lowered ceremoniously.

Image	Description
	When carried in procession with other flags the U.S. flag should be either on the marching right (the flag's right) or to the front and center of the flag line. When displayed on a float in a parade, the flag should be hung from a staff or suspended so it falls free. It should not be draped over a vehicle.
	When displayed with another flag against a wall from crossed staffs, the U.S. flag should be on its own right (left to a person facing the wall) and its staff should be in front of the other flag's staff.
	In a group of flags displayed from staffs, the U.S. flag should be at the center and the highest point.
	When the U.S. flag is displayed other than from a staff, it should be displayed flat, or suspended so that its folds fall free. When displayed over a street, place the union so it faces north or east, depending upon the direction of the street.
	When the U.S. flag is displayed from as projecting from a building, the union of the flag should be placed at the peak of the unless the flag is at half-staff. When suspended from a rope extending from the building on a pole, the flag should be hoisted out, union first from the building.
	When flags of states, cities or organizations are flown on the same staff, the U.S. flag must be at the top (except during church services conducted at sea by Navy chaplains)

The flag should never be draped or drawn back in folds. Draped red, white and blue bunting should be used for decoration, with the blue at the top and red at the bottom.

The flag may be flown at half-staff to honor a newly deceased federal or state government official by order of the president or the governor, respectively. On Memorial Day, the flag should be displayed at half-staff until noon.

Other Things Not to Do with the Flag

Out of respect for the U.S. flag, never:

- dip it for any person or thing, even though state flags, regimental colors and other flags may be dipped as a mark of honor.

- display it with the union down, except as a signal of distress.

- let the flag touch anything beneath it: ground, floor, water, merchandise.

- carry it horizontally, but always aloft.

- fasten or display it in a way that will permit it to be damaged or soiled.

- place anything on the flag, including letters, insignia, or designs of any kind.

- use it for holding anything.

- use it as wearing apparel, bedding or drapery. It should not be used on a costume or athletic uniform. However, a flag patch may be attached to the uniform of patriotic organizations, military personnel, police officers and firefighters.

- use the flag for advertising or promotion purposes or print it on paper napkins, boxes or anything else intended for temporary use and discard.

During the hoisting or lowering of the flag or when it passes in parade or review, Americans should stand at attention facing the flag and place their right hand over the heart. Uniformed military members render the military salute. Men not in uniform should remove any headdress and hold it with their right hand at their left shoulder, the hand resting over the heart. Those who are not U.S. citizens should stand at attention.

When the flag is worn out or otherwise no longer a fitting emblem for display, it should be destroyed in a dignified way, preferably by burning.
